I find it rather interesting that the courts are considering making changes to a system that is already riddled with problems and issues. Implementing changes will only add to the current six thousand problems.

I have been waiting and is still waiting on my case to be entered into the system. My case was ordered in August of 2002, and to this date as of this writing I have not seen one check from the friend of the court. I've spent a great deal of time and energy downtown, only to finally realize that this is hopeless.

So fix what's wrong first, and then improve upon it.
